

CHAPTERS

- 5 JAMES ARCHIBALD, PAOLA CATENACCIO, GIULIANA GARZONE, Debating evolutions in science, technology and society: Ethical and ideological perspectives. An introduction
- 15 RITA SALVI, The process of knowledge dissemination
- 31 CECILIA LAZZERETTI, FRANCA POPPI, “Nanotechnologies: where should they take us?” The popularization of nanosciences on the web: A discourse analytical approach
- 51 JEKATERINA NIKITINA, Representation of gene-editing in British and Italian newspapers. A cross-linguistic corpus-assisted discourse study
- 77 EMANUELE BRAMBILLA, Toxicity exposed in the Greenpeace Toxic Tech campaign
- 99 ERSILIA INCELLI, The discourse of eco-cities as an ethical commitment: A comparative study in English specialized domains
- 119 CHIARA DEGANO, ANNALISA SANDRELLI, A corpus-based study of ethically sensitive issues in EU directives, national transposition measures and the press
- 137 DENISE MILIZIA, CINZIA SPINZI, When a relationship ends “there can be no turning back”. The divorce metaphor in the Brexit discourse
- 167 RUTH BREEZE, Don’t let the facts spoil the story: Foregrounding in news genres versus scientific rigour
- 191 DERMOT HEANEY, Geo-bioethics: Reporting on Russia’s ban from Olympic competition in the International and Russian English language press

- 211 MICHELE SALA, Knowledge dissemination and ideology-framing in digital communication. The case of law journal abstracts
- 231 GIROLAMO TESSUTO, Accountability practices in research and publication ethics on the web. Linguistic and discursive features